NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERINGBut Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death."

Medicines, I had tried many, but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. I did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles.

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength. If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

EVERY WIFE'S DUTYWatch Husband's Hair. If Thin or Full of Dandruff Insist on His Using Parisian Sage.

Men give but little thought to the care of the hair. Not until the first bald spot appears do they really take notice. If your husband's hair is getting thin; if he has dandruff or itching scalp, take immediate action. Do not let him become a bald head.

Get from any drug or toilet counter a 50 cent bottle of Parisian Sage. The first application stops itching head and removes dandruff—the great hair destroyer. A little Parisian Sage rubbed well into the scalp for a few nights will work wonders. When the hair stops falling, and the new growth appears, frequent use of this invigorating tonic is all that is needed to make the hair perfectly healthy, thick and beautiful.

Surely try Parisian Sage. Wells & Haymaker Co. sell it with an agreement to refund your money, if it does not. It's a delightful hair tonic for men and women.—Advertisement.

ARMED GUARDS IN LABOR DISPUTES ARE CONDEMNEDBy Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor in His First Annual Report.*REGULATION IS REQUESTED*Use of Firearms in a Species of Private Warfare Calls for Serious Consideration.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Protest against the use of firearms and the employment of armed guards and private detectives in labor disputes and strikes was made by Secretary W. B. Wilson, of the Department of Labor in his first annual report just submitted to President Wilson. He recommends that Congress enact legislation "within its constitutional limitations to regulate this business in the interest of public peace and order."

The use of firearms, said Secretary Wilson, "in a species of private warfare in connection with labor strikes, calls for serious consideration. Groups of men on both sides, without military or police authority for it, have used firearms with fatal effect in the coal strike in southern Colorado. These actions have been pronounced through interstate commerce, and many of the armed men are said to have been imported into Colorado from other states through a business concern engaged commercially across state lines in supplying corporations with an armed and trained private soldier or police."

Numbers, running into hundreds and even thousands, in connection with the Pore Marquette strike in Michigan, armed guards, furnished by agencies in other states supplying men to take the place of local strikers, accompanied these men to Grand Rapids. They were turned back by the United States marshal under instructions from the district judge. In the Calumet copper mining region, armed guards under contract with the employers were forwarded to the locality by agencies in other states.

On relations of capital and labor, Secretary Wilson takes advanced ground. "The relation of employer and wage earner," he says, "is no longer a personal or individual, but a social, both employers and operatives act in groups."

"That this method of employment, generally necessary for success in modern industry, may give the employers great contractual advantages over wage earners. Unless wage earners also act collectively through their own agents, they are often at a practical disadvantage. Employers who do not collectively in hiring wage earners are often averse to dealing with agents of wage earners, who collectively offer their services. They desire to contract with wage earners individually. It is upon this point that labor disputes frequently spring up and become acute. In most instances in which employers accord workmen practical recognition of the right of collective bargaining, fair relations are maintained. In any circumstances, differences may be expected to arise. In such cases the Department of Labor might possibly find a common ground for agreement which the disputants, in their eagerness for advantage or in the heat of their controversy, had overlooked."

In that connection it is suggested that Congress clearly define the functions of the Department of Labor in the mediation of labor disputes and vote an appropriation adequate to meet the requirements of mediation work. In that way, it was suggested, "the welfare of wage earners could be fostered while the property of employers, and the peace and good order of society at large were conserved. Amicable settlement between the parties themselves, without mediation, are manifestly first in the order of preference. Mediation comes next. Arbitration third. But any of the three is preferable to strikes or lock-outs."

The success already achieved by the Department of Labor, in the adjustment of labor controversies, demonstrates, in the judgment of Secretary Wilson, that such disputes nearly always may be adjusted to the profit of all interested, and he believes that the department "properly equipped should be able to make mediation progressively popular with both the employing and the wage-earning interests of the country."

The report contains a review of the labor controversies in which the good offices of the Department of Labor were exercised during the ten months of its existence. In practically all of them, agents of the department were successful, although in the Colorado coal strike and in the Michigan copper strike no peaceful solutions yet have been reached, because, it was pointed out, the parties to the controversies could not be induced to accept mediation.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, 1,197,872 immigrants came to this country, an increase of 538,720 over the previous year. Of those 996,356 were between 14 and 44 years of age, 147,158 were under 14 and 64,879 were 45 or over. Twenty-six per cent of the aliens admitted were totally illiterate. The bulk of the immigration came from the countries of southern and eastern Europe, only fifteen per cent coming from northern and western Europe.

While the immigration increased forty-three per cent during the last year, the number of exclusions of arriving aliens increased only twenty-four per cent. That was due, the report indicates, to the financial and physical inability of the Bureau of Immigration properly to supervise the great number of arriving aliens. Under existing arrangements of the $,855 Japanese who applied for admission during the year, eighty-eight were excluded.

Difficulties in enforcing the so-called Chinese exclusion law were discussed, with a view to the enactment of additional legislation and the setting of force money with which to protect the borders of the country.

It was said that Chinese were continually being smuggled across both the northern and southern borders of the country, and that they come to the ports of entry as "merchants," "students," "natives" and "sons of natives," when they really are laborers.

Recommendations made by Commissioner General Caminetti, of the Immigration Bureau, were called to the attention of Congress, but were not submitted in the secretary's report.

"With the sympathetic co-operation of Congress," says Secretary Wilson, in conclusion, "the Department of Labor can effectively serve industrial interests, not only without injury to any, but with benefit to all."

MOTORMAN SIMS
Runs His Car over Fire Hose and He is Fined $21.60 in Police Court.

John Sims, motorman on the Weston car that arrived here at 9:30 Wednesday night, was fined $21.60 by Mayor Will H. Cole in police court this morning on a charge of running his car over and cutting into the fire hose, which was stretched across Fourth street and in use in fighting the blaze between Polk street and Trade Alley at the time.

Fifty feet of hose were ruined by the accident, the value of which is said to be about $55. The warrant for Sims' arrest was sworn out by Fire Chief George Isenhardt.

Although he entered a plea of guilty to the charge, Sims contended that a member of the fire department should have been on guard and notified him to stop his car. However, the mayor held that this was not the business of the fire department.

VETERANSIn the Service of the Baltimore and Ohio System Organized An Association.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 5.—Employees who have been twenty years or more in the service of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and other lines now embraced in the system are organizing a Veterans' Employees' Association, with social and fraternal features.

Membership in the association is open to railroad men in all departments of the service—officials, clerks, trainmen, telegraphers, mechanics, trackmen and laborers—who are joining under the bond of fellowship in promoting the railroad spirit. The plan under which the Veterans' Association is being organized provides for a branch on each division. The number of Baltimore and Ohio men eligible to membership runs into the thousands and hundreds of others who will qualify during the next few years have signified their intention to join when permitted to by the years of service regulations.

Branches of the Veterans' Association have been established in Philadelphia with 369 members, and in Baltimore with 279 members. Other branches will be organized in the near future at Brunswick, Md., 180 members; Cumberland, 190; Wheeling, W. Va., 190; Chicago Junction, O., 125; and Garrett, Ind., 60.

After these branches have been organized, the association will be extended to the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton and the Staten Island lines.

The seniority rule will apply to the credit of members of the association, so that employees who have been in railroad service for twenty years and upwards, but whose period of service began before the lines became affiliated with the Baltimore and Ohio, will enjoy the same privileges as those whose service has been entirely with the parent company.

Each branch organization will have elective officers, including a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, with an executive and sub-committee. Meetings will be held periodically when social features will be enjoyed.

One of the objects of the Veterans' Association is to lend assistance to the families of members, should help be required in event of death. The education of deceased members' children will be provided for and such other assistance as comes within the province of the association will be rendered. Membership is entirely voluntary and the dues have been fixed nominally.

An emblem of the Veterans' Employees' Association has been adopted, the design being the dome of the capitol at Washington, supported by the letter "V." A button emblem, which card will be issued, and gold buttons will be furnished to the veterans who have seen fifty years of service.
